David Storvick

October, 1929 - November, 2011
Emeritus Professor David A. Storvick died on 5 November 2011, aged 82. He was a distinguished member of the School of Mathematics at the University of Minnesota, and a recognized researcher in the fields of complex analysis and mathematical physics. During his career, he published 39 papers in top level research journals, many of them written with another former colleague, Robert Cameron. David’s research accomplishments led to many invitations to speak at conferences throughout the world.

David received a Ph.D. degree in mathematics from the University of Michigan in 1956 as a student of Arthur Lohwater. After two years at Iowa State University, he joined the University of Minnesota, where he spent the rest of his career, retiring in 2004. He served as Associate Head of the School of Mathematics from 1964-70, Associate Dean of the Institute of Technology from 1979-83 and then again from 1993-94, and Acting Director of the Gray Fresh Water Biological Institute from 1989-90. He enjoyed three sabbaticals, during which he visited the University of Wisconsin, Imperial College, London, and the University of York. He will be missed by his colleagues and friends in Minnesota and throughout the world.
